AN OPERATION ON THE KING SUCCESS REPORTED

SLIGHT IMPROVEMENT NOTED IN CONDITION
DIFFICULT STRUGGLE AHEAD

London, 8 p.m., Yesterday.
A British Wireless message states:—
A bulletin issued this afternoon states that a slight improvement in the King's condition, noticed this morning, is maintained.
Some purulent fluid round the base of the right lung was removed by puncture this morning and a further drainage will be necessary.
The bulletin is signed by the five doctors, Hewitt, Whitty, Buzzard, Rolleston and Lord Dawson of Penn.
There was a more hopeful feeling at Buckingham Palace to-day.
It is understood that anxiety continues, but that it is not so marked as during the week-end.
The rally mentioned in bulletins is stated to show the wonderful strength with which His Majesty is still fighting his illness on the 22nd day of his exhausting course.
An Operation

The evening bulletin says that an operation on the King for the drainage of the right side of the chest has been successfully performed this evening and that the condition of His Majesty is satisfactory.

Router states:—
The operation followed the finding of pleural fluid, some of which was removed by puncture in the morning. The fluid was what the doctors were seeking when they conducted the exploration by needle and X-ray examination on Friday. Then they were unable to find any effusion of the infection, which had become localised in the right lung.

It spread generally throughout the body and it was this which caused the grave anxiety of the past two days.
The King's rally last night follows what is described as a "miraculous" return of localised infection instead of general infection.

This is regarded as a good sign, as it meant that the doctors could carry out active treatment.
This they did this morning with the happy result that they were able to arrange for an operation to-night.

The operation couldn't be performed had the King been unable to maintain his strength despite the attack of the disease. The lower temperature, mentioned in the morning, was the first sign that the infection had again become localised.
The operation was finished by 7.50.

Complete Surprise
The afternoon bulletin was a complete surprise even to many in the Palace. The secret of a minor operation to remove the fluid had been well kept. Five doctors were with the King for an hour before the bulletin was issued. Dr. Whitty, the bacteriologist, called shortly before the others.
The officials at the palace are reluctant to comment upon the bulletin but mention that maintenance of the improvement is undoubtedly a good sign.

The Anaesthetist
Dr. Francis E. Shipway was the anaesthetist at the King's operation. He is the inventor of the Shipway anaesthetising apparatus.

Great Tax on Strength
The operation was a great tax on His Majesty's strength, already impaired by 22 days' illness, but the fact that the King was in a position to undergo the operation is regarded as remarkable, and is a wonderful tribute to the strength of his constitution.

Those in touch with the Royal circle are therefore hopeful of the ultimate result, though they realise that a long and difficult struggle is ahead.—Reuter.

Anxiety at the Palace
There was a tense air of anxiety in the palace during the operation, for which preparations were made throughout the afternoon. The Prince of Wales, the Duke and

AMBUSHED IN THE DESERT FRENCH DISASTER

GENERAL CLAVERY, COMMANDING THE ALGERIA DISTRICT, ALONG WITH STAFF CAPTAINS PASQUET AND DEBENNE, TWO NON-COMMISSIONED OFFICERS AND A PARTY OF FOREIGN LEGIONARIES, WHILE RETURNING FROM A TOUR OF INSPECTION IN ALGERIA WERE AMBUSHED IN THE DESERT 40 MILES SOUTH OF THE COLOMB BECHAR RAILWAY TERMINUS.
After a fusillade, 16 horsemen dashed forward and attacked the general's car; the general, staff officers and one non-commissioned officer were killed immediately.
It is believed that five legionaries were also killed. One is missing. Three of the wounded were brought in to Colomb Bechar.
Clavery's promotion from his colonelcy had only been gazetted to-day.
Assailants Tracked
Later.
Air force members tracked down Clavery's assailants and machine gunned them.—Reuter.

Duchess York, H.M. the Queen and Princess Mary were the first to hear the glad news of the operation.

To-night there is an air of subdued optimism in the Royal household.
The Prince of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of York left the palace after the operation but returned at 9 o'clock to dine with the Queen.

"Satisfactory"
A bulletin issued at 8.45, signed by six doctors, stated that the operation had been successful, and the condition of His Majesty was satisfactory.

The surgeon was Sir Hugh Rigby. The Prince of Wales, and the Duke and Duchess of York were with the Queen while the operation was being carried out.
It was officially stated at 11.30 that the King's condition so far continues satisfactory.

The Prince of Wales, who had a long talk with the doctors, left the palace at 11.15.
The doctors, who were almost in constant consultation since the afternoon, departed at 11.30, except Sir S. Hewitt, who remained for the night.

Prince George
It was officially announced to-day that Prince George, the King's youngest son, who is in the Navy, is coming home.

He left Bermuda, to-day in the cruiser "Durban" for New York, where he will embark in the Cunard liner "Berengaria," which sails for England on Friday.
The "Berengaria" is due in Southampton on December 20, which is Prince George's birthday. He will be 26.

The Duke of Gloucester, third son of the King and Queen, who is on his way home from South Africa, is expected to reach London on Christmas Eve.—British Wireless Service.

Medical Report
An official statement as to His Majesty's illness, dated at 3 p.m. yesterday, with reference to an authorised publication by the medical press says:

"General blood infection and toxæmia were prominent features in the first fortnight and which at one time caused grave anxiety. Moreover, the characteristics of typical pleuro-pneumonia are not present. A week ago the evidences of general infection were less prominent. Nevertheless, as original pleurisy involved the diaphragm a careful watch was kept for the formation of fluid between the lung and the diaphragm and its extension to the posterior-pulmonary surface. There were signs that this development in the morning accompanied increased leucocytes and the drainage now to be performed. Though this pleural localization of the infection is so anxiously anticipated it makes direction and advance more defined and more hopeful, but there is still a prospect of a long and difficult struggle.—Reuter.

DIGGING FOR DEAD BODIES TRAGIC FIRE

BIG OUTBREAK IN CHINESE PART OF CITY
A TWO-HOURS' FIGHT

A fire which resulted in at least one person being burned to death, occurred in the early hours of this morning, in Upper Station-street, a narrow thoroughfare in the Chinese section of the city, which runs from Hollywood-road to Tai-ping-shan.
How the fire started is not known at present, but it originated at No. 20, Upper Station-street, the ground floor of which is occupied by the Yuen Hing Joss paper shop.
The outbreak was discovered at 2 a.m. and the alarm was sent through to the Central Fire Station from the fire alarm post in Sai-street, which is the next street running off Hollywood-road.
Six Engines
Six fire-engines turned out and the fire was promptly tackled with six deliveries from three pumps and from two hydrants in Hollywood-road and at the top of Upper Station-street. Every point of vantage was used by the fire-lighters, but owing to the narrowness of the street, it was for some time difficult effectively to reach the flames.
Houses Nos. 18 and 22 on either side of No. 20 were soon involved, whilst the flames also left across the street and ignited house No. 7. Both Nos. 7 and 20 were burned out, whilst the neighbouring houses, Nos. 18, 22 and 26 suffered some damage. Both the first and second floor verandahs of No. 9 were partly burned. All the houses involved had three storeys, and the floors of Nos. 7 and 20 collapsed and all their occupants and contents were thrown into the ground floor, where only charred remains were to be seen this morning.

Dead Bodies
After a couple of hours' strenuous fight with the flames, the outbreak was got under control and it was an hour later before it was extinguished.

Then the work of digging the debris for dead bodies (there were rumours of several people being missing) was undertaken by the firemen. Soon after 10 a.m., the charred remains of a Chinese woman were dug out and removed to the public mortuary.

Another victim of the fire, a man named Lee Kap (52) of the first floor of house No. 20, was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital at 3.40 a.m., suffering from severe burns to his legs, hands and neck. He is in a serious condition.

BOLIVIA DISPUTE
TELEGRAM SENT AS TO AMICABLE SETTLEMENT
THE SOLEMN PLEDGE

London, Yesterday.
The Council of the League of Nations, at Lugano yesterday, decided after two secret sessions to dispatch to the Governments of Bolivia and Paraguay—both countries being members of League—a telegram in reference to the frontier incident that has arisen between them.

The telegram was sent in the name of M. Briand as Acting President of the Council, and gives the text of a resolution unanimously adopted by the Council as follows:—
"The Council expresses its full conviction that the incidents which have occurred between those two members of the League of Nations will not become serious. It does not doubt that the two states which, by signing the covenant, have solemnly pledged themselves to seek by pacific means a solution of the disputes arising between them, will have recourse to such methods as would be in conformity with their international obligations and would appear in the actual circumstances to be most likely to ensure together with the maintenance of peace a settlement of their disputes."

The members of the council present included representatives of Chile, Venezuela, and Cuba.—British Wireless Service.

BANDITS ROUTED OUT AT LAST! KU TAU MOUNTAINS

CAPTORS POISON VICTIMS TO SPITE TROOPS
RIVER, PIRATES HELD AT BAY

(From Our Own Correspondent.)
Peking, Tuesday.
Hundreds of casualties on both sides, unfortunate captives done to death, and many of the outlaws killed in combat was, in brief, the result of the Canton Government's grand assault on Ku Tau mountains, the pirate and bandit stronghold which has shrouded defiance at law and order for several decades.
Plans for the campaign were announced recently in the "China Mail."
About 2,000 men from the 12th division of the Nationalist Army, under Major-General Heung Hong-ping, supported by a dozen river gunboats, took part in the attack.
Matched Barracks
The surrounding country was guarded by detachments of local Defence Corps (formerly the Volunteer Militia), who blocked all avenues of escape.
Step by step, the regular soldiers drove back the defending robbers. In the centre of the highlands, the troops found huge matchlocks concealed from view. These sheds were used by the bandits as barracks.
Two or three hundred people held in captivity after having been kidnapped for ransom were liberated by the victorious troops. Unfortunately, a large number had been killed off by the bandits before the first wave of light infantry reached the heights.
Gunboats Open Fire
Some of the robbers' prisoners had been released before the campaign. Their relatives had become anxious and had increased their offers; on the other hand, the outlaws had accepted anything in reason, for fear they might get nothing at all. News has been received, however, that some of those set free before the storming of their prison have died of poisoning, believed to have been administered by the bandits to spite the attackers.
The division lost a number of men. The bandits had a large number killed; and small batches are still at bay, facing the possibility of being starved out.
River Now Safe
Ejected from their hiding places, the bandits took to flight. Simultaneously, the gunboats opened fire. Pirate gangs have also been dislodged and traffic on this part of the West River immediately began to display signs of confidence. More than ten tow-boats were added to the Kiangmoon-Canton-Suncheong run within the last few days.
A battalion is encamped near "Parrot's Peak" junction to protect passing craft because waters here are shallow and narrow and a pirate lair is not far off.
Present intentions are that the Ku Tau mountains are to be explored and then farmed out for plantation.

No. 2, who according to No. 1, is his wife, is charged with possession of certain plates found in the cubicle which she occupied with No. 1 at No. 19, Queen's-road East.

No. 3, 4 and 5 are charged with aiding and abetting a man named Chan Wing who was apparently the prime mover in the plot to distribute these exceedingly good forgeries and who, unfortunately, had not been arrested.

Mr. Fitzroy commented that the only flaw he could find with the forged notes was a slight difference in the length of the enclosure of the name of the bank, whilst the colour across the centre of the note appeared to be darker.

Proceeding, Mr. Fitzroy said that Nos. 4 and 5 are also charged with the possession of the printing press found in the cubicle they occupied at the same house. This press, however, No. 1 had claimed as his own and said that he had placed it in the middle cubicle.

Claimed to be Wife
No. 6 (the other female accused) is charged with possession of 40 forged notes. She claimed to be the wife of the man Chan Wing, the prime mover.

This woman and No. 7 were the two people who pointed out to the police where the notes were, under a pile of wood at Jardine's-bazaar. The notes were wrapped up in ordinary Chinese newspaper and just shoved under the boards.
Mr. Fitzroy commented that the gang had chosen a safe place to hide the notes in, as no one would have thought to look for them there.

No. 7 is charged with being in possession of the 40 forged notes, jointly with No. 6, and with aiding and abetting in the procuring of the uttering of the notes.

Not Very Strong
No. 8 is charged with the possession of one of the forged $50 notes which was found in his person together with $19 in genuine notes.

There was originally another No. 9 accused charged with joint possession with No. 8 of the one forged $50 note, but he had been discharged by his Worship.

The present No. 9, whom Counsel would refer to as "No. 10" for convenience, is charged with uttering one of the $50 forged notes.

The case against Nos. 11 and 12 was not very strong. They are charged with conspiracy and aiding and abetting because they had often been visiting Chan Wing at No. 114, Des Voeux-road Central, and ap-

TEN MEN AND TWO WOMEN FORGERY CHARGE

WHERE "DUD" H.K. BANK NOTES WERE FOUND
CASE OPENS

Hearing was begun by Mr. R. E. Lindsell, at the Central Magistracy this morning, of the case in which ten Chinese men and two women are charged in connection with the recent discovery in Hong Kong of a quantity of forged $50 banknotes of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation (1923 issue).
Mr. F. H. Losely appeared for the first five accused, including one of the women. Mr. Lee d'Almada, senior, was for one of the other men (No. 8 accused); whilst another man (No. 12) was represented by Mr. E. J. L. Grist. The remaining accused were not legally represented.
Crown's Case
The case for the Crown was conducted by Mr. H. Somerset Fitzroy, Assistant Attorney-General.
He explained that the 12 accused were all under the general charge of conspiracy to utter, uttering, and attempting to utter certain forged notes of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank, and possession of materials such as inks and other things which could be used in the production of notes of one of the Chinese Banks, and possession of a printing press which could be used for the purpose of printing forged notes.
In addition to the general charge, the first male accused was also charged with the unlawful possession of a pistol, 13 plates bearing figures of notes of the Central Bank of China, materials from which forged notes could be printed, paper which could be used for the production of forged notes, paper, lines, marks and devices such as are used in the making of Central Bank of China notes, and also possession of a printing press.

GERMANY'S TRADE WITH CHINA OFFICIAL REPORT

STATED TO EXCEED PRE-WAR FIGURES
RESTRICTIONS ELIMINATED

Berlin, Yesterday.
The Foreign Affairs Committee of the Reichstag has sanctioned the German-South African trade and shipping agreements, also the agreement between Germany and the Panama and the German-Chinese trade agreement.
The Government spokesman pointed out that all restrictions as to Germany's position compared with other countries in trade with China had been eliminated.
He said that Germany's post-war trade with China had exceeded, since 1925, all pre-war trade figures. The value of the goods exchanged with China in 1927 had surpassed that of 1913 by 48 per cent, and the first six months of 1928 had already reached the total figures of 1913.
The trade to Germany in both years exceeded the trade to China by a hundred per cent.—Reuter.

"SAY 'THANK YOU'"
GIVE A RICSHA COOLIE TEN DOLLARS AND WALK OFF WITH MONEY!

If an argument put forward for the other side were correct, Mr. C. A. S. Russ claimed in the Summary Court this morning, it will be possible—following the argument to its conclusion—for a man to draw $700 out of a Money Loan Association, accept the first richa coolie he sees, give him $10 and then put him up as the substitute (of the "drawn") for repayment, say "thank you" and walk off with the money.

Mr. F. X. d'Almada, who defended in a part-heard money loan association case, submitted that there was no contract; also that the liability of repayment had been transferred to a well-known tea-house which had since gone bankrupt, and in which the head of the Association was a partner.

Unusual Course
The unusual course of putting in as documentary evidence books which had been in the custody of the Official Receiver for some time was followed.

This was after the Puisne Judge (Mr. Justice Jacks) had decided to reserve Mr. d'Almada's points and expressed a wish to hear the evidence for the defence before giving a decision.

The writ bears an imposing appearance. Amendments were underlined in red ink and all but one line in the statement of claim—covering the whole of a foolscap sheet—was so underlined. Names of parties had been added, but only for nominal purpose, namely, those of seven co-members as co-plaintiffs and one co-member as co-defendant.

The head of the Association is Mr. Fan Ngai-nam, trader of No. 143, Connaught-road West. He is the principal plaintiff.

Responsibilities
Principal defendants are the Asia Cafe (formerly the Seck Yuen Cafe) and Mr. Kwan Yun-fong, managing partner, of Nos. 251 and 253, Des Voeux-road Central.

The amount claimed is $800 plus costs.
Proceedings this morning included argument by both sides, evidence by some of the co-plaintiffs, questions by his Lordship as to the customs of money loan associations, the responsibilities of heads and the relationship between individual members, and evidence by Mr. Leung Hi-po, manager of the Asia Cafe.

peared to be connected with the gang.
No. 18 admitted that he tried to get rid of one of the forged notes at the request of a man named Chan Yu-sing, but he did not do so.

Before Arrest
Mr. Fitzroy then proceeded to deal with the circumstances leading up to the arrest of the gang.

He said that the police became aware that certain forged notes were in existence in the Colony and that

TWO ARRESTS ON A MURDER CHARGE AFTER 10 MONTHS

ECHO OF OUTRAGE ON STUDENT IN KENNEDY-ROAD
THE CRIME RECALLED

The echo of the foul murder in Kennedy-road on the night of February 22 last of a young Chinese student named Fung Man-chiu, was heard in Mr. R. E. Lindsell's Court at the Central Magistracy this morning when two Chinese, both described as blacksmiths, were charged with the murder of the youth.
The accused were Leung Fong (19), and Kam Lau-kwai (20), both natives of Heungshan, whose address in Hong Kong is given as No. 29, Wing Fung-street, second floor.
Detective Inspector Lane, who had charge of the case, applied for a week's formal remand.
The Magistrate inquired how the arrest of the two men occurred after all these months.
Inspector Explains
Inspector Lane replied that it was partly brought about by information received by the police, and partly by the recovery of an article of jewellery in a pawnshop. This is believed to have formed part of the property stolen on the night of the murder and robbery.
Replying to another question, Inspector Lane said that the lady in the case was now in Singapore, but the police had sent a telegram for her to come down for the purpose of the case.
The Magistrate asked if it was possible for the lady to identify the murdered youth's assailants, and Inspector Lane replied that there was a vague description, given by her at the time which might prove useful.
The accused were remanded in police custody for a week.

A Student
Fung Man-chiu (20) was a student of St. George's School, Hollywood-road.

He was walking with a young lady friend when they were accosted by two armed robbers who, not satisfied with robbing the couple of their valuables, killed the youth without giving him a chance to put up a fight for life.

One of the rumours which was prevalent was that the murder was committed for a motive other than robbery and the valuables were taken from the victim and his companion to put investigators off the scent.

The Crime
The story as told soon after the murder to the Police by the only eyewitness, Miss But Pui-fong (19), a splinter of No. 350, Praya East, was as follows:—

About 8 o'clock on the night of Feb. 22 she was in Kennedy-road in the company of deceased, Fung Man-chiu. They were returning to Wanchai after a stroll. When they got to the top of Monmouth-path, which leads down to Queen's-road East, they stopped to rest. They had been talking together for a couple of minutes when they suddenly became aware of the fact that two men were behind them.

As the couple turned round, the two strangers pounced on them. One of the men caught hold of the girl and took from her a gold bangle and a neck-chain worth $51. Deceased was not given a chance to put up a fight. He was seized by the other ruffian who immediately stabbed him in the left side of the back with what the girl saw was a sharp instrument. She was sure that it was not a dagger.

A Lonely Spot
The blow entered deceased's heart and he immediately collapsed. His murderer then bent over his body and took a gold ring worth $10 from one of his hands, and then both the murderer and his companion ran away down Monmouth-path.

She ran about aimlessly at a loss as to what to do. The spot where the murder had occurred is a very lonely one and people seldom pass it at night. Eventually, however, she found her way to a house in the vicinity where she told what had happened.

TWO YEARS' "HARD"

FIVE REVOLVERS AND 1,000 ROUNDS OF AMMUNITION
IN FALSE BOTTOM

Sentence of two years' hard labour was yesterday afternoon passed on Cheung Man, a stevedore passenger on the s.s. "President Cleveland" from America, for the unlawful possession, without a permit, of five revolvers and 1,000 rounds of ammunition, concealed in the false bottom of a packing case.

The case was heard by two Magistrates (Mr. R. E. Lindsell and Major C. Willson, O.B.E.).
Mr. E. C. S. Brooks represented the accused and advanced the defence that the packing case did not belong to Cheung, and was removed from the ship by mistake by a sampan man to whom accused's luggage was entrusted.

SHIPPING SECTION.

IN A "SUB"

HARDSHIPS OF CRAMPED QUARTERS

ALWAYS VOLUNTEERS

The world's submarine fleets are steadily expanding. More boats are in service and under construction to-day than ever before. The fact that we ourselves are building new submarines is proof of the utility of these vessels, even when they are operated with strict regard to law of nations. During the war, indeed, our numerous submarines rendered service of priceless value in almost every theatre of the war at sea, especially in the North Sea, the Baltic, and the Mediterranean.

Our "L" boats were derived from the "E" class, and are built primarily for patrol work, as were their famous prototypes. They are of moderate size, ranging from 890 to 960 tons, the later boats of the group having a stronger armament and better living quarters than the earlier ones. I have been through several of them, and heard their merits described, always in high terms, by the officers and men who run them.

In our latest submarines, of the "O" class, we have gone in for larger dimensions, and these boats will doubtless represent a further advance in fighting power, radius of action, and what is of equal importance—habitability. It was useless to pretend, however, that life in a submarine, even in the latest and most commodious type, is a bed of roses. These craft are so packed with machinery and gadgets that very little space is left available for the crew. Judged by the landman's standard, comfort is non-existent.

The officers, who may be as many as four, live in a "wardroom" which, in the earlier "L" boats, at least, is a tiny alcove curtained off from the main alleyway running through the boat. How they manage to store their personal effects in this microscopic space is a mystery to the laymen.

Between their accommodation and that of the petty officers and the men there is no great difference.

There is, indeed, a good deal of the democratic spirit in submarine life; where circumstances render it impossible to maintain, in full measure, the outward forms of discipline and the ceremonial which are characteristic of the Navy as a whole.

A Voluntary Basis

In spite of the obvious discomforts, real hardships, and undeniable hazards of the life, there is never any lack of volunteers for our submarines. Although, under an Admiralty decree issued some years ago, every officer and man in the Navy is under an obligation to serve in submarines if called upon to do so, these boats, I understand, are still manned on a voluntary basis.

Applicants are required to pass a very stiff test in regard to character and mental and bodily fitness. If accepted they are put through a long and exhaustive course of training, for in a submarine, more than in any other vessel, it is of the first importance that every man shall know his job thoroughly, since a momentary error of judgment on the part of any individual might endanger ship and crew.

It speaks volumes for the efficiency of personnel and material that of the several disasters which have occurred to British submarines at sea, since the war, all but one were caused by collision with surface craft—that is to say, they were not due to any failure on the part of the boat itself, nor, so far as can be ascertained, to any shortcomings on the part of the personnel. The single exception was the loss of a big, steam-driven "K" boat, the mystery of whose disappearance has never been cleared up.

A short cruise in a submarine leaves the civilian full of admiration for the men who elect to spend several years of their lives in such craft. The atmosphere inside the boat, even when the hatches are open, is conducive to headache. When all openings are sealed and the boat has been under water for some hours the air becomes distinctly "thick" and matches will not light. There is an all pervading smell of oil and hot metal, and from end to end of the boat the electric lamps are blobs of light in a bluish haze.

The Silver "Fish"

From the forward compartment, where the bow torpedo tubes are placed and the huge silver "fish" repose in their slings, you walk along the alleyway to the main control compartment. It is from here that the captain works the boat. When he is diving he sits at the giant periscope, which he can raise and lower at will. One often hears it said that even when her periscope is projecting above the surface a submarine must still be comparatively blind. That is not so. In ordinary weather the periscope gives a wonderfully clear view of the surrounding sea, and vision is only impeded for a few seconds when spray dashes over the lens. If, however, the periscope were raised while the boat was passing through a patch of oil its "eye" would be put out of action for the time being.

Aft of the control position are the living quarters, and beyond these again is the engine-room, with its twin sets of powerful "Diesels," which propel the boat when she is on the surface. When she is about to dive the "Diesels" are cut out, and the propellers are then turned by electro-motors, taking their current from batteries stowed neatly away beneath the deck-plates. This dual system of propulsion is objectionable for many reasons. Not only does it add considerably to the weight of machinery to be carried, but it keeps the submerged speed at a very low figure, and thus restricts the tactical efficiency of the boat.

At present, however, and until such time as a unified system of drive above and below water is discovered, every submarine must needs be equipped with both "Diesel" and electric machinery. Should the day ever come when these boats are able to travel submerged at twenty knots, instead of, as now, at only six knots or so, except for short bursts—they will be much more formidable than the existing type.

Our submarine officers and men are perfectly happy at their job. The service, for all its hardships and risks, seems to exert a peculiar fascination over its members. "If I had my way," said an officer who had been twelve years in submarines, "I would never serve in any other craft. Risk? Oh, that's practically non-existent nowadays. Hardships? Well, as you can see, we are quite comfortable down here." From which I gathered that comfort is a relative term.

When a submarine is in port the majority of her people are berthed in the flotilla parent ship, usually a big vessel having cabin accommodation for the officers of the flotilla, and equipped with magazines, store-rooms, and repair shops. Such a vessel is the "Lucia," which I have recently visited. She is an ex-German liner, specially reconstructed for the purpose she now serves.

I have been impressed by the number of officers who regard the submarine as a most important, even a vital element in our scheme of imperial defence. While resenting the misuse of this arm by our late enemies, they remain convinced that the submarine is militarily a perfectly legitimate, and most effective, weapon, whether for offence or defence, but particularly for the protection of those lengthy trade routes which are the arteries of our Empire.

A BANANA SHIP

WEST INDIES-CANADA TRADE

$1,000,000 A YEAR

The steamer "Lady Somers," which has been built for the Canadian National Steamships' Canada-West Indies service, was launched in mill week at Cammell, Laird's, Birkenhead. The christening was performed by Mrs. Smith, wife of Mr. C. J. Smith, the European vice-president of the Canadian National Railways.

The vessel, gross register 7,750 tons, is the fourth of a fleet of five which "Cammell" Laird and Co. are building for this service. She will sail regularly from Montreal, and for the balance of the year from Halifax to Bermuda, and thence to Jamaica. Only first class passengers will be carried.

There is specially designed refrigeration space for 100,000 bunches of bananas. Much is expected in the way of an increased banana trade when the new service is in full operation. One of its main purposes is to foster a direct trade in this commodity between the two principal British possessions in the Western hemisphere. To this end provision has been made for a preferential tariff of 50c a bunch on all West Indian bananas entering Canada by Canadian ports. Those engaged in the trade estimate that the banana traffic alone resulting from the new steamship service will swell the trade figures between Canada and the West Indies by $1,000,000 a year.

The "Lady Somers" commemorates the name of Admiral Sir George Somers, the virtual discoverer of the Bermudas, whose ship the "Sea Venture" was wrecked off the islands in July, 1609.

SURVEYOR'S FEES

Judgment, with costs, was awarded Mr. R. Hunter, surveyor to Bureau Veritas, Prince's Building, by the Puisne Judge (Mr. Justice Jacks) in the Summary Court yesterday in the case in which the Kwong Sang Lung shipyard, Mongkok, were sued for $150 (fee for inspection of plans and specifications) and $37.40 (equivalent of 400 francs, the cost of a cable from Paris).

Earlier this week his Lordship reserved judgment to consider two points raised by Mr. F. X. d'Almada for the defence.

Mr. T. G. Bennett was for plaintiff.

Remembrance is born of a multitude of little things — a lift of the shoulder, a lifting laugh, a snatch of song — a breath of perfume.

The woman of to-day chooses her odour with this truth in mind. Like a master in the art of mosaic, she enhances the delicate pattern of her personality with a fragrance that gently points the way to remembrance.

REFORMING THE LORDS

The reform of the House of Lords—a subject which was a hardy annual before the Great War intervened—has again assumed a prominent place in Homeside interest, and has again met with its customary fate; it has been shelved. Lord Clarendon is the latest individual to "carry back the can," to use a colloquial expression full of meaning. Limitation and elective representation to ensure a degree of fairness for each political party comprised, in brief, his proposals. The scheme was opposed by Liberals and Labour alike, though there is no indication in the cables to hand, and printed yesterday, of the attitude of the Conservatives except what is contained in the Lord Chancellor's "summing-up," in the course of which he stated there could be no chance of giving legislative effect to any proposals for the reform of the Lords during the life of the present Parliament.

Lord Clarendon's proposals are worth keeping in mind, for although we have Lord Halsbury's assurance, which must carry much weight, that nothing in the nature of changes in the constitution of the Upper House will be effected—or, we take it, seriously considered—twixt the present and the dissolution of Parliament, these same proposals may, with reason, again occupy the attention of members when the next Government is in being. To fulfil the conditions summarised above the proposer suggests that in each Parliament there should sit and vote one hundred and fifty Peers elected by proportional representation of the cumulative vote by the whole body of Peers, and one hundred and fifty other persons nominated by the Crown in proportion to the strength of the various parties in the House of Commons. The noble Earl also advocated that the Crown should also have the power to nominate a limited number of life Peers in each Parliament and that those Peers not elected to sit in the Lords should be eligible to "go to the country" for seats in the Lower House.

Lord Buckmaster, we are told, opposed the scheme on behalf of the Liberals, though it is not stated what form his argument took. Lord Parmour, who spoke for the Labour Party, also objected to the proposals, and although it is rather piquant to observe a stalwart of Labour disagreeing with any suggestion having to do with the reform of the House of Lords, his contention that one hundred and fifty Peers elected by the present Upper House would be predominantly Conservative is a sound one. The Lord Chancellor evidently realised this, which is why, perhaps, he pronounced there would be no change while Mr. Baldwin's party is in power. Reform—though this is hardly the correct term—of the House of Lords there must be. The problem, admittedly difficult of solution, is not so urgent, however, that the present Government has felt any necessity to tackle it wholeheartedly. It will be interesting to see what the principal political parties think about it when their election "dope" is given to the world.

The King's Operation

That His Majesty has been able successfully to undergo an operation speaks well for his constitution after three weeks' illness. It will be noted that the operation was kept a secret from all with of course, the exception of Her Majesty the Queen and other members of the Royal Family. The operation necessitated the attendance of two more doctors, thus bringing the total number of medical men who have so far been in attendance to seven. This, of course, is no real indication as to the seriousness of the illness, but there can now be no doubt that the King must have been in a decidedly grave condition. There appear to be signs that the operation has been successful, and perhaps it may prove to be a turning point in the splendid struggle which His Majesty has been putting up. His loyal subjects and other sympathisers, the world over will devoutly hope that such may prove to be the case.

The attainment of a hundred years as the normal span of life was foreshadowed by Dr. S. Henning Belfrage, in a lecture to the New Health Society. "If an enthusiasm for health were really established," he said, "the span of life would almost certainly be extended to one hundred years as a normal event, and might conceivably be stretched still further. The hale and hearty man or woman of sixty or seventy years would then be the man or woman of ninety or a hundred, while forty or fifty would be the heyday of youth and vigour."—Daily Express (London).

The Chinese lad who yesterday appeared at the Kowloon Magistracy on the charge of theft of a bicycle from a garage in Nathan-road, was this morning sentenced by Mr. E. W. Hamilton to three months' hard labour.

Sentence of four months' hard labour was passed by Mr. E. W. Hamilton, at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon, on an elderly Chinese woman, who was convicted on a charge of harbouring a married girl. The accused was alleged to have brought the girl to Hong Kong from the country, to find work.

A special added attraction will be provided at the 9.20 p.m. performance in the Queen's Theatre from to-day to Saturday. A number of specialty dances, including "The Argentine Tango" and "The Dance of Death" will be presented by "Nina and Jack," two popular artists who have recently returned to the East from extensive engagements in Europe.

Considering the brief period it has been established, it is gratifying to see the results achieved by the Hong Kong University Amateur Photographic Club as revealed at the annual exhibition and competition of photographic prints held at the University Union. The exhibition which opened last Monday, contains some 200 photographic prints, most of which are by members.

"Do the vegetables answer for their name?" asked Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Kowloon Court to-day, when the prosecution said that a witness would be able to prove that the stolen vegetables were his property. The case in question was one in which a Chinese was charged with the theft of vegetables. After evidence had been given by a woman of having seen the theft committed, his Worship said that he could not convict, in that the case revolved on one person's word against another. Defendant was accordingly discharged.

Three Chinese who were charged with the possession of sixty jars containing Chinese wine, on which duty had not been paid, pleaded at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning that they were fakes, and that they did not know what quantity of wine they were transporting. They also said that they were ignorant of the fact that duty had not been paid. A second charge, that of importing wine into the colony against the regulations was put in but dismissed. In sentencing first defendant to three months' with the option of a $300 fine, His Worship cautioned second and third defendants, and registered a conviction against them.

ELECTRIC MOTOR

TWO WOMEN CHARGED WITH ITS LARCENY

COURT PROCEEDINGS

Two Chinese women were charged at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday with the larceny of an electric motor, belonging to the China Light and Power Co., Ltd., and, alternatively, with receiving the article which had been installed at No. 149, Nam Chong-street, Shamshuipo.

Mr. Hin-shing Lo, for the defendants, pleaded not guilty to both charges. According to Sgt. Brittain, the motor had been hired from the China Light and Power Co., Ltd., by the Min Sang shop of No. 149, Nam Chong-street. On Nov. 1, the firm went bankrupt and a debt was due to the husband of one of the defendants amounting to $187.50.

The defendants, it was alleged, took the motor from the shop to their house, and afterwards removed it to Gap Shek Mei, where they buried it.

The case was adjourned till Saturday.

"HONG KONG SMITH"

FATHER CELEBRATES NATAL DAY

VETERAN TEACHER

The Adelaide "Mail" of Saturday, October 13, contained the following article relative to the birthday of Mr. J. N. T. Smith, of Woodville. The subject of the notice is the father of Mr. Octavius A. Smith, the general manager of Messrs. Whiteaway, Laidlaw and Co., Ltd.

The "Mail's" article reads:—"Age cannot wither him nor custom stale his infinite variety"—to slightly paraphrase Shakespeare—can with truth be written of Mr. James Nicholson Thompson Smith, of Woodville, who will celebrate his eighty-fourth birthday on Tuesday.

Sailor, soldier, traveller, school teacher by turns it has fallen to the lot of few men resident in South Australia to have such varied experiences as the veteran who is spending the evening of his days with his daughter, Mrs. A. H. Lock, at Rowley terrace, Woodville.

"Am I fit?" Well, hardly that," Mr. Smith told a representative of "The Mail" in the course of a chat. "I cannot get about now, but I don't think there is much wrong with this," and he significantly tapped a broad forehead, surmounted by a shock of snow white hair.

The keen, quizzical blue eyes, and alert mind testified that he was right.

Mr. Smith was born a subject of the famous Queen Pomare, in Tahiti, Society Islands, on October 16, 1844. His parents shortly afterward took him to Sydney, and early in 1846 reached Adelaide.

Educated at the famous school conducted by the late Mr. J. L. Young, he numbered among his schoolmates many who subsequently made a name for themselves in various spheres. There were Messrs. "Pat" Auld, Caleb Pencock, and the members of the Beck, Hack, Giles, Gosse, Finlayson, Fowler, Chestum, Frew, Solomon, and other prominent early day families.

Career of Adventure

Young Smith started out on a career of adventure at 16 years of age, and during the next few years, travelled through India, Britain, North and South America, and other countries. Soldiering in England was too tame, so he went to America and participated in the Civil War.

Once he was nearly knifed on a boat when rounding the Horn, by an angry second mate, and on the same voyage the vessel missed crashing on to some rocks by a hair's breadth.

Next young Smith shipped from San Francisco to Sydney, and eventually became one of the first batch of school-teachers under the system inaugurated by the late Sir Henry Parkes in 1867. His wife died, and he brought two motherless bairns back to South Australia. After following several occupations he joined the Education Department under the late Mr. J. A. Hartley, and for 28 years was schoolteaching in various parts of the State, retiring on a pension in 1906.

One of his companions in adventure in Mexico and along the South American coast was an Irishman named John O'Connell. The pair lost sight of each other, but years later met accidentally in Rundle-street, Adelaide. O'Connell subsequently amassed much wealth, and became mayor of Unley, and a justice of the peace.

One son of Mr. J. N. T. Smith, Mr. O. A. Smith, known from Africa to China as "Hong Kong Smith," is general manager in Hong Kong for the large London hardware firm of Whiteaway, Laidlaw and Co. He recently spent several months with his family in Adelaide, and reached Hong Kong yesterday on the return journey.

Systems Condemned
"What do I think of the modern system of State education?" The veteran repeated the question of his interviewer, and then with fine scorn added, "Not much."

"Why should the taxpayers—in other words, the average working man—pay for the education of so many children of comparatively well-to-do parents, as is the case at high schools, and other such institutions nowadays?" he demanded. "In days gone by their parents paid for them, and they should do so to-day. The youngsters are getting swelled heads at the expense of the State. You can emphasise that as strongly as you like."

"The present age is too frivolous," he declared, "and I think the school curriculums are being overloaded with all sorts of unnecessary subjects."

Then the veteran turned deliberately to a discussion on philology, his pet subject, and recalled favourite Dickensian characters, and how the old dominie in "Beside the Bonfire Briar Bush" could tell at a glance

P'RAPS-P'RAPS NOT!

Little Girl: "My papa has to get up awfully early so as to get to the office to see if his clerks is there attendin' to business."

Little Boy: "My papa don't have to. He's one of the clerks."

Rastus: Here am a telegram from de master in Africa statin' he-am sendin' us some lions' tails.

Circus Owner's Wife: Lions' tails, Rastus? What are you talking about?

Rastus: Well, read it yo'self. It says plain:—"Jes' captured two lions; sending details by mail."

"Now, look here, Dorothy," said her father sternly, "your mother tells me you've been naughty al day long. The next time you throw mud at your sister's clean dress you'll go to bed without your supper."

"The next time I throw mud at Doris," said the crying child, "I'll wait till after supper."

"Is this a really exciting story?" inquired the old lady, as the librarian handed her the book for which she had asked.

"Well, it depends on what you call exciting," replied the librarian. "It has three murders in it."

"That's right," said the lady. "I like a book with a bit of life in it."

Higgins: "Hallo, Matthews, old chap. I hear you backed Perfect Fool at the races the other day and made a small fortune."

Matthews: "Yes, I didn't do badly."

"How did you spot the winner?"

"Oh, they were the last words my wife said to me as I left the house."

Percy's mother was getting him ready for school. Suddenly she noticed a bruise on his head. "Percy," she said, "you've been fighting again!"

"Rot!" said Percy. "I wasn't fighting at all. That was an oversight."

"Yes," he replied. "I was sitting on that little ass, Tanner, yesterday, and I forgot to hold his feet."

She was a very busy woman, and found it most disturbing and irritating when one day she was bitten by a dog. But, despite her accident, she carried on bravely with the work in her department. Then a fresh trouble arose—people in the same business kept worrying her with senseless questions.

"Fancy, were you bitten by a mad dog?"

NEW PAVILION

FOR THE DIOCESAN GIRLS' SCHOOL.

FORMAL OPENING.

Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. W. T. Southorn, wife of His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, performed the ceremony of formally opening the newly erected pavilion of the Diocesan Girls' School in the presence of a large gathering.

The building was gaily decorated with flags, and the chief attraction of the afternoon was a bazaar which was held in the school building. It received generous support from the many visitors.

Across the main entrance of the new pavilion were blue and white ribbons tied to the two pillars, and in declaring the pavilion open, Mrs. Southorn severed the ribbons in the centre with a pair of scissors.

Mrs. Southorn was received on arrival by His Lordship the Bishop of Victoria (the Rt. Rev. C. B. Dwyer, D.D.), and Miss Sawyer (Headmistress of the School). A Guard of Honour of the School's Company of Girl Guides, lined the path leading to the new pavilion.

After the opening ceremony, Mrs. Southorn entered the pavilion followed by the gathering. Here a short programme of music and dances was presented by pupils of the school. Then an adjournment was made to the bazaar which was also opened by Mrs. Southorn.

The Bishop, in a brief speech, extended to Mrs. Southorn the warm welcome of the school and their great pleasure at her presence there that afternoon.

Mrs. Southorn's speech after thanking the Bishop for his kind remarks, Mrs. Southorn addressed the gathering as follows:—
The opening of this playshed gives me very special pleasure. It stands for so much that is good. To begin with the money has been raised through the efforts of the school combined with the assistance of Government. The school has worked hard to achieve this result and Government has assisted substantially. Apart from the means by which it has been raised, I can see in the future all the benefit that hundreds of girls will derive here from healthy exercise and encouragement of the team spirit. Girls of the twentieth century are very fortunate. In former generations the enjoyment of fresh air and games appeared to be limited chiefly to boys. Croquet and later a mild game of tennis were all that could be allotted to girls.

But nowadays the whole world of games is open to them. I may be addressing the Betty Nuthalls, Cecil Leitchs and Mercedes Gleitzers of the future.

Girls of the Diocesan School—rejoice in the freedom, the glorious freedom you now enjoy. Make the most of this playshed. Let it at all times be filled with the spirit of good fellowship and good sportsmanship.

And at the same time I hope the bazaar you have organised will be a great success. I am filled with admiration of the vitality, the many-sidedness of the Diocesan School. I gather that the objects of the bazaar are the feeding of hungry children at Christmas, the assistance of the Victoria Home and the equipment of your playground. They are all deserving objects. I trust they will be liberally supported by purchasers, and that the harvest from your bazaar will be a very rich one.

The death occurred at the General Hospital, Singapore, recently at the early age of 32, of Miss Jane Biele, stenographer on board the "Empress of Canada." She was admitted to the General Hospital suffering from enteric fever. The funeral which took place at the Biladiri Cemetery was attended by the Hon. Mr. F. A. Pledger, Mr. Graham-Brown and members of the staff of Boustead and Co., Ltd. The Ven. Archdeacon F. G. Swindell officiated. Floral tributes were received from the following:—His Sorrowing Parents; The Canadian Pacific Steamships Limited; Captain Griffiths and crew, "Empress of Canada"; and the directors and staff of Boustead and Company, Limited, local agents for the Canadian Pacific Steamships, Ltd.

DRESS REHEARSAL

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY'S "TOM JONES"

EXCELLENT BOOKING.

The final dress rehearsal of the Hong Kong Philharmonic Society's production of "Tom Jones" was held at the Theatre Royal last night, giving every promise of a most successful run and a further notable achievement by the local amateurs.

The opera, full of pretty music and delightful humour, was cleverly presented by a cast which includes a number of people who have appeared in previous productions and also some new talent.

"Tom Jones" will be presented to the public for the first time tomorrow night.

Excellent booking is reported at the Anderson Music Co., particularly for the later nights. The fact should be stressed that the opera will not be presented after Saturday, Dec. 22, whatever the demand, and the public will be well advised to take advantage of the shows earlier in the week and also the matinee which will be given next Wednesday at 4.30 p.m.

"BARBED WIRE"

HALL CAINE'S STORY ON THE SCREEN

"Barbed Wire," a picture of war yet with only a brief glimpse of actual warfare will be screened at the Queen's Theatre from today to Saturday.

The story was adapted from Hall Caine's famous novel, "The Woman of Knockaloe" and concerns the life during the great war of a beautiful girl of Normandy whose bitter hatred for the enemies of her country turned to a deep and lasting love for a German soldier. It is a tense drama, unusual in its theme, and is carried out in a remarkable manner through the clever direction of the eminent German producer Erich Pommer. Pola Negri, who has been described as the greatest emotional actress of the screen, enacts her difficult part in convincing manner. Clive Brook, a popular screen hero plays opposite the star who receives further support from Einar Hanson and Clyde Cook. A rare touch of comedy is introduced in parts and thus keeps the story perfectly balanced throughout.

"THE ESCAPE"

TO-DAY AT THE STAR THEATRE

Virginia Valli, William Russell, Nancy Drexel and George Meeker are the principal players in an excellent picture, "The Escape," which is to be screened at the Star Theatre from today to Saturday.

The story starts in the tenements of New York where a beautiful young girl is seen amid the squalor of her surroundings. Soon however, the scene shifts to the night clubs where the girl has succeeded in getting a position. Her adventures as the hostess of a notorious cafe are told in a striking manner. A great climax is provided to the splendid story which is well acted by the excellent cast. "The Escape" is based on the popular stage play of that name and has been given a lavish production by the director Richard Rosson, a director at his best with this type of picture.

A meeting is to be held in Nanjing on the 15th inst. to discuss matters relating to road building in Kiangsu Province. It is the hope of the Commissioner of Reconstruction, Mr. Wang Pei-hing, to have a network of roads throughout the province within the next 18 months, reports the Chinese press.

Mr. E. A. Lamerton, Chief Inspector of Police, Kullim, will be going on leave next month when Mr. Colbert of the F.M.S. Police will relieve him.

RACING

"STEVE" ACCEPTS A RETAINER

Sir Victor Sassoon, for whom Steve Donoghue is to ride as first jockey next year, has large business interests in India, in which country he spends most of his time.

Sir Victor's horses are trained by Crawford at Newmarket, and not far away he has a splendid stud farm.

For some years past Donoghue has preferred to ride as a free lance.

The year before the war, broke out "Steve" was offered a retainer of £5,000 for three years to ride for the Kaiser.

Fortunately for Donoghue, he declined it, as Fred Winter, who was then engaged, was interned at Ruhleben until the end of hostilities.

Donoghue has ridden no fewer than six Derby winners, and he may ride another next year, for in Gay Day Sir Victor owns one of the best two-year-olds of the season.

Colonel Basil Seton Ward, Secretary of the branch of the British Legion at Albury, Surrey, and formerly of the Indian Army, collapsed and died while walking to church.

"MY POOR HEAD!"

Have You Tried The Tonic Method of Treatment With Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?

There are few ailments that cause more genuine misery than nervous, neuralgic, or kick-headaches. Light and noise increase the pain; food is unthought of, for it only adds to the distress. When the attack is on there is little to be done until it passes away. This may mean hours, or it may mean days. Nearly every victim of headache suffers from thin blood, also weak nerves, the latter being the result of the former. The most successful treatment, therefore, for headaches is a remedy that will rebuild the blood so that it can nourish the starved nerves.

This process of strengthening thin blood and weak nerves is being accomplished on all sides by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These pills contain the elements that make new blood; and as the nerves get their nourishment from the blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been found invaluable in a wide range of diseases of the blood and nerves, such as anaemia, digestive disorder, neuralgia, and neurasthenia or nervous breakdown.

If you are not fit Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will help you to health. Get a supply now from any chemist, or, if not free, one bottle for $1.50, 6 bottles for $8.00 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 60, Kiangse Road, Shanghai.

STOLEN JEWELLERY

WOMAN SENTENCED TO SIX MONTHS' JAIL

GIRL ADMONISHED

The Chinese woman, who attempted to escape from police custody by jumping into the harbour from a Yaumatei ferry launch, while being conveyed across the harbour with other prisoners, were brought before Mr. E. W. Hamilton, at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon, charged on remand with receiving a quantity of jewellery stolen by a small Chinese girl, and with harbouring the girl without the consent of her parents or guardians.

The girl, who was living with her grandmother at No. 161, Reclamation-street, first floor, disappeared on December 4, taking several articles of jewellery with her.

The police investigated the affair and discovered the girl living with accused at No. 352, Shanghai-street.

A search of the premises resulted in the missing jewellery being found.

Sentence of six months' hard labour was passed on the woman, while the girl, who admitted stealing the jewellery, was reprimanded.

SMALL-POX IN SZE YAP

Pakkai, Kongmoon, Tuesday.

Small-pox is prevalent and there are a good many people with sore-throats. Bad drinking water is blamed, most of the wells having reached a very low level because of the drought. Even the ponds and streams have dried up.

Oranges, for which the Sze Yap are famous, are certain to be expensive this year owing to the lack of rain.—Our own correspondent.

A PROCESSION

COURT PROCEEDINGS AS A SEQUEL

WITHOUT PERMISSION

As the result of a procession held for the honour of the god of the house-builders, ten Chinese were brought before Mr. R. E. Lindsell yesterday charged with holding a procession without due permission from the Secretariat for Chinese Affairs.

Mr. R. A. D. Forrest, of the S. C. A., prosecuted and Mr. F. M. Loseby who appeared for the defendants, entered a plea of "not guilty."

Mr. Forrest stated that on Nov. 14, one Chan Chi-sang applied to the S.C.A. for permission to hold a procession in connection with the opening of the Lo Pan Temple.

The application was refused and the applicant was advised not to hold the procession at all.

The police later reported that they had seen a procession and the names of ten persons were taken.

Mr. Loseby said that only forty-five people took part in the procession, and he offered, on behalf of his clients, the fullest possible apology and an expression of regret.

Mr. Lindsell imposed a fine of $50 on Choy Un, the social secretary of the Carpenters' and Contractors' Association, and $5 each on the others.

On a further plea of Mr. Loseby, Mr. Forrest said that he would, personally, be satisfied with a smaller fine, and the Magistrate accordingly reduced the fine to $20.

Princess Beatrice recently laid a wreath on the Cenotaph, Whitehall, in memory of 11,452 officers and other ranks of the Royal Warwickshire Regiment who died in the war.

A WEEK'S PAPERS IN ONE

"OVERLAND CHINA MAIL"
ILLUSTRATED.

CHINA NEWS, LOCAL NEWS
AND ALL THE NEWS

SEND IT HOME!

Just at a time when most people were hoping for a revival in trade came the news that some Chinese in Western China, having engendered a boycott of things Japanese, had intimidated stevedores into refraining from working a British ship's cargo. For once, immediate steps are being taken to prevent an impasse.

It is essential that British merchants in Hong Kong and China should do their duty to themselves by bringing such facts Home to everybody at Home.

Only this week, there have been further instances of ignorance of the situation out here—as evidenced in the tacit approval of Mr. F. Hussey-Freke's acquiescing in Nationalist China's seizure of the Salt funds.

The "Overland China Mail" contains an indictment of the Foreign Office policy. Send it Home to be read as widely as possible. It is the only illustrated weekly budget of "local" and "China" news published in Hong Kong. As such, it must be the best reading matter for friends in other parts of the world who evince interest in China.

RESIDENTS BACK FROM LEAVE

Many residents have just returned to Hong Kong after holidays at Home and elsewhere. For the first few days, one's conscience can be calmed by thoughts that time is needed to unpack and to get settled down again. Then that letter must go.

What you have to say for yourself no one else can write for you; but if you want to ease anxiety as to what is happening out here that is a task that the "Overland China Mail" will do for you as it has invariably done in the past.

How many times were you "stumped" when somebody asked you about conditions in China? Show that you are at least thoughtful by sending them a copy of the "Overland." That will tell them all they want to know.

How the "Vestris" Went Down

Here is a drawing by Winsor McCay, famous artist, depicting the British liner "Vestris" heeling over preparatory to her final dive to bottom of the sea off Cape May. Notice the lifeboats filled with men, women and children pulling hastily out of the suction area as the vessel rolls to her doom.

Last Picture of the "Vestris"

Here is how the Lamport and Holt liner "Vestris" appeared as she departed on a fatal trip to South America. The vessel was abandoned by all hands off Cape May after a hurried S. O. S. had been sent out asking nearby craft to rush to the aid of passengers in lifeboats. The map shows approximate spot where the "Vestris" dove to a watery grave.

THE GOLDEN AGE

FRENCH ART DESIGN IN PARIS

FINISH IN LACQUER

Two outstanding exhibits which evoked many favourable comments by the Parisian Press at the 1928 International Automobile Salon were the Louis XIV Limousine mounted on the Studebaker President Eight chassis, and a "modern art" Erskine Six Royal Sedan. The two cars were specially prepared for exhibit at the Salon.

The spirit of the golden age of France was chosen as the decorative motif for the magnificent limousine. The exterior colour scheme is blue, black and gold, with radiator, wheels, lamps and exterior hardware finished in gold lacquer.

Bearskin Rug

The symbolic double "L" Louis le Grand appears on two medallions of delicate needlepoint lace on the back of the wide lounge seat in the luxurious rear compartment. A bearskin rug covers the parquet floor.

Separating the rear compartment from the chauffeur's seat is a drop glass, below which is a cabinet of hand carved walnut containing three compartments. On the doors of the main compartment is the characteristic double "L," while the doors of the smaller compartments are embellished with a fleur de lis. There are elaborate vanity cases and specially designed dome and corner lamps. The ornate interior hardware, designed to harmonize with the period fittings, is finished in soft rose gold. Silk window shades are mounted on rollers concealed in the cornice.

Modern Art

In the Erskine Royal Sedan, Studebaker is the first to apply the modern art motif in a motor car. The beauty of the body lines is strikingly emphasized by the daring finish of French violet, silver and lustrous black lacquer. Bonnet, cowl and body panels are in a light shade of violet. Visor, roof and rear quarter are finished in silver, as are wire wheels. The most striking feature of the colour scheme is the handling of the body belt and running board apron, which are finished in two shades of violet, and carry an irregular modern art motif.

The interior is in keeping with the extreme modernity of the exterior. The wide lounge seats in both front and rear compartments are covered with brilliant tapestry of futuristic design, which is also used on the heavily upholstered arm rests flanking the rear seat. The rich effect of the patterned tapestry of the seats is carried further in the sheen of a silver tapestry on the ceiling and side walls.

The great interest displayed in the two Studebaker models by crowds attending this year's Salon was reminiscent of the popularity of the famous Erskine Six gold chassis first shown at the Paris Salon in 1927.

53,000 MILES

TWO CARS' HARD DRIVEN RECORD

ONE NOW IN MUSEUM

With more than 53,000 hard driven miles on its speedometer, a famous car which made motoring history has at last come to rest in the museum of transportation maintained by the Studebaker Corporation in its administration building at South Bend, Indiana, U.S.A.

The car is one of the two Studebaker Commander roadsters, each of which brought to a climax a series of American stock car racing victories by travelling 25,000 miles at a sustained average speed of 65.31 miles per hour. With this achievement, these cars shattered all previous American speed and endurance records for stock cars, and established new distance records which stood until broken less than four months ago by the Studebaker President Eight run of 30,000 miles in 26,926 minutes. More than half of the 53,304 miles on the car placed in the museum were covered at speeds in excess of 65 miles an hour. After its record breaking performance on the speedway it made a tour of the United States in the hands of Ralph Hepburn, the racing pilot, who has been on tour in one of the President Eight roadsters which have proved to be the only cars capable of breaking the Commander's endurance and speed records.

BRITISH CRITIC

PRAISES AMERICAN
MANUFACTURERS

GOOD AUTOMOBILES

The ability of American motor car manufacturers to build automobiles which give the utmost in performance and comfort is stressed in an interesting article by Capt. E. De Normanville, a leading British motor critic in a recent issue of the Auto Motor Journal of London.

He pays high tribute to Studebaker's new Director Sedan as an example of the success of an American builder in creating an inexpensive car with high standards of performance, style, and comfort.

"This car has a number of ingenious details in its equipment, and also some exclusive features, but to my mind its pre-eminent charm is the possession of a good sized engine which is capable of giving you remarkable car performance."

"To give you an impression of what it can achieve we will take the case of Brockley Hill, that well known gradient which is so deceptive in the way it reduces car speed when approaching the top. The sensation of floating over it with the speedometer a little beyond the 40 m.p.h. mark at the top was very pleasurable."

The Director

"The quite exceptional acceleration and climbing capabilities of the Director are not obtained by any undue rear axle reduction, but solely by that good sized engine of high efficiency and a car so built as to eliminate all unnecessary weight; in other words, by perfectly correct methods."

"Naturally, there are four-wheel brakes, but they are of special type, embodying amplified action of the brake shoes. The braking system is very good, as it is not only highly efficient in result, but suave and progressive in achieving that result."

The British expert was greatly impressed with the Director's outstanding riding qualities. "I tried her with only myself aboard, and also with a full load, and in both cases the riding was very smooth. Another point which is rather exceptional is that one noticed this good quality whether on good roads, moderately good roads, or inferior roads."

"The car has an exclusive feature in being equipped with ball bearing spring shackles, the primary object of which, as I understand it, is to eliminate squeaks and rattles and the need for occasional adjustment, while also practically eliminating the trouble of lubrication, as once in 20,000 miles would probably be enough for such bearings."

BESSARABIA

NEW ROADS ARE BEING OPENED

Bessarabia, which became part of Roumania after the war, is undergoing rapid changes and in the whole region an ever increasing display of activity is apparent. The problem of transport is receiving its due share of attention; new roads are being opened up and the whole machinery of transport is being steadily improved. With a view to encouraging every initiative in this direction, both public and private bodies are vying strenuously with each other in promoting trials, competitions and other means of propaganda. Notable amongst these is the "First Tourist Trial" organized jointly by the newspaper "Cuvantul Basarabiei" and the Automobile Club of Bessarabia, which took place on the 8th and 9th of September.

The trial, open only to touring cars, was run over a most difficult course to about 280 miles.

Twenty-seven cars representing the following makes started:—Oakland, Buick, Overland, Ford, Erskine, Essex, Ansald, Oldsmobile, Chandler, Rugby, Peerless, Paige and Fiat.

A model 520 Fiat tourer driven by Major Urdareanu arrived first with out a single penalisation mark, winning the "first prize" of 25,000 Lei. A Buick and an Oakland were classified second and third respectively.

According to the Automobile Club of Southern California, one automobile in every sixteen is involved in an accident annually, resulting in the death or injury of some person.

THE DAWN OF SOMETHING FINER

AMONG

SIX CYLINDER MOTOR CARS

To-day CHANDLER presents a new line of SIXES—cars that millions have hoped to find and hope to own.

Something infinitely smarter than the subject of yesterday. Something that offers the luxury that millions have often wished they could afford.

Something that brings to the millions an utterly new understanding of what is power, and what is smoothness and easy handling.

Something that has the distinction, the action, the comfort, the inbuilt quality, and the actual feel of an expensive car.

But something priced for the millions, not for a few brilliant new Sixes that boldly challenge any and all comparisons, in any and all directions.

See these new CHANDLERS. Drive one—that's the only way you'll ever really know how much CHANDLER'S new cars exceed and excel your fondest expectations.

BRIGHT PROSPECTS

BUSINESS CONDITIONS
IN EUROPE

THE AMERICAN CAR

"General business" conditions in Europe appear exceedingly bright," commented Paul G. Hoffman, Vice President of The Studebaker Corporation of America, on his return to South Bend, Ind., from the Continent in October. "There is practically no unemployment on the continent, and the wage of the workman shows a decided improvement over previous years."

Mr. Hoffman, accompanied by Howard S. Welch, Manager of Export Sales for The Studebaker Corporation of America, sailed for Paris, September 28 to attend the International Automobile Salon, which was held October 4-14. Later they were present at the opening of the British automobile show at the Olympia, London.

Referring to the Paris Salon, Mr. Hoffman said, "The Studebaker-Erskine exhibit was the cause of considerable comment among the French. It attracted crowds which were equalled only by the displays of Citroen and Renault cars of French manufacture."

"The Greatest"

"European" sales of Studebaker and Erskine cars will be the greatest this year in history, showing an increase of almost two to one over last year. There is every possibility that 1929 will show a most healthy gain, in view of the fact Europe as a whole may be expected to continue its steady recovery."

"It is interesting to note that the American car is securing a 'goodly share' of the European automobile business. This is principally because American cars are, as a whole, better built and engineered. European manufacturers are limited to a comparatively small market and their volume doesn't allow heavy expenditures for engineering, testing, or the precision methods of manufacture used by many American makes," concluded Mr. Hoffman.

BRITAIN'S SHARE

OF NEW ZEALAND MOTOR
TRADE

According to advice received from New Zealand, in the first half of 1928 Great Britain's share of the motor trade in that dominion increased from 974 sales, or about 15% per cent, in the corresponding period of 1927 to 1,236 or 19% per cent. The increase is largely due to small cars of the 7 and 8 h.p. class, of which three makes were on the market, a fourth making its appearance in July and August. The value of the British cars sold was about 25 per cent. of the total value of the car sales.

Of 1,264 commercial vehicles registered from January to June 211 were classified as British, or about 16% per cent, of those classified.

200,000 PONTIACS

AND ALL IN DAILY
USE

AMAZING RECORDS

Truly amazing records for long life and dependability have been established by the more than 200,000 Pontiacs now in daily use. In the entire field of low priced cars, no other car offers such lasting value as is found in the New Series Pontiac.

Advanced engineering quality materials, precision manufacture, and rigorous testing at General Motors Ground, are responsible for Pontiac's unmatched reputation for long life.

While the New Series Pontiac embodies many noteworthy advancements, it is still basically the same tried and proved car as the earlier models. Added to the fundamental long-life features found in every Pontiac from the first are such noteworthy improvements as the famous G-M-E cylinder head, the cross-flow radiator with its thermostatic temperature control, AC mechanical fuel pump, efficient four-wheel brakes of positive mechanical type, semi-circular look—and last, but not least, new new bodies by Fisher.

Every one of these big features represents an important advancement. Combined they place Pontiac far ahead of anything else in its field. Every one of these advancements is a distinct contribution towards long life, smooth performance, and lasting value.

HILL CLIMBS

BRITAIN'S HIGHEST PEAK CONQUERED

When, in 1911, a well-known 20 h.p. car reached the summit of Ben Nevis, says "Irish Motoring" (Belfast) the feat was thought to be very remarkable, inasmuch as it had previously been considered impossible. Later, another model of the same make of car made the ascent in seven and three-quarter hours, descending on the following day. But in one day (October 6 last) an Austin "Seven" accomplished both ascent and descent—taking only 7 hours 23 minutes and 1 hour 55 minutes respectively.

As is well known, Ben Nevis is the highest peak in the British Isles—4,406 feet above sea level—and the performance put up by this smallest of British cars (driven by an amateur and carrying a passenger) is a very complete reply to those who think a 7-h.p. car is not powerful enough for ordinary and extraordinary requirements. In this conquest of Ben Nevis the famous little Austin "Seven" has added yet another wonderful record to its long list of achievements.

BRITISH VEHICLES

ASSIST IN AFRICAN DEVELOPMENTS

REMARKABLE STATISTICS

Some very remarkable statistics were recently published concerning the road motor services of the South African Railway Authorities, which form a striking commentary on the development which is proceeding in this part of the Empire by the employment of motor vehicles.

It was only in 1925 when motor vehicles were first employed as feeders to their railways in up-country districts, and at the end of the first year's operations by March, 1926, the total route mileage was 1,465, and the goods traffic amounted to 9,900 tons. For the year ended March, 1928, only two years later, the route mileage has extended to 7,636 miles, the goods traffic increased to 63,000 tons, and in addition nearly one million passengers had been carried.

Most of the S.A.R. fleet consists of Thornycroft vehicles of both four- and six-wheel types, of which they are now operating a fleet of over 300, which it may be added is the largest fleet of British vehicles operated by any one user throughout the Empire.

It has grown from small beginnings entirely on the satisfactory service given, particularly by the six-wheeled types of Thornycroft vehicles put into service in outlying districts where no roads exist.

Agricultural development has thereby been tremendously assisted, and the annual production of cream alone has increased from 135,000 gallons to 391,000 gallons, and similar advances have been made amongst cattle farmers and maize producers.

The most recent development was the official opening in August last of new services into Swaziland, a native state without any railways and the S.A.R. authorities expressed their conviction that the inauguration of the new road services would provide far cheaper and more efficient transport than the extension of their present railways into that territory as had previously been advocated.

It only remains to add that what is being achieved so successfully in South Africa is also being done, on a smaller scale, in South America, Australia and other overseas colonies, where Thornycroft six-wheeled vehicles have been put into service.

Although 1929 is the year automobile racing engines are scheduled to change their displacement, it has been decided to let the present 91½ cubic remain.

A.J.S. MODELS

NEW RANGE FOR 1929
INTERESTING

SADDLE TANKS

Perhaps the most striking feature of the new season's A.J.S. machines is the complete change which they have undergone so far as external appearance is concerned. The most noticeable alteration is the adoption of the new popular saddle type tank, which incidentally was first used by the A.J.S. some years ago, but was discontinued in favour of the then more orthodox fitting between the top and bottom rails. However, in order to fall into line with modern tendencies they have reverted to this type of tank for 1929.

Outstanding Feature

Another outstanding feature for next season is the employment of the dry sump lubrication system which is being adopted on all models. The mechanical pump used in this system is of the duplex or double acting type, one pump forcing oil directly to the main bearings, big end and timing gear, whilst the second pump returns oil to the tank on the seat tube. In addition there is a supply direct to the cylinder, foot controlled by a needle valve, which allows a quantity of oil to be fed direct to this portion of the engine. For ordinary road speeds, in fact anything up to 60 m.p.h., this supply need not be used, but if the rider intends entering speed events or fast hill climbs the needle valve should be unscrewed, and so allow oil to circulate to this part. In the dry sump principle the surplus oil from the engine drain by gravity and by action of the flywheels in the crankcase sump, from whence, as previously mentioned, it is returned by means of the second pump to the main oil tank. In conjunction with the saddle tanks entirely new frames are, of course, being used, these being of the straight tube variety.

Improved front forks are also a feature of the new models, these being of triangulated girder pattern of round section tubing with central compression spring; all links are adjustable; and A.J.S. shock absorbers are fitted to all except the cheapest models, likewise steering dampers incorporated in the head. Adjustable handle-bars, which again, by the way, are not fitted on the cheaper models, allow of alteration both in respect of angle and position. Minor improvements include the fitting of the footstarter segment between the clutch and the gearbox, instead of outside the clutch as previously. This fitting allows a much nearer chaincase design at this juncture, and moreover greatly facilitates easy removal of the clutch plates which can now be drawn off the shaft without dismantling the starter mechanism. The footstarter return spring is now mounted on the spindle at the crank end.

New Speedometer

An innovation is the fitting of a speedometer in the tank, the instrument being driven by flexible cable from the layshaft of the gearbox. This fitting is standard on all models of 1929, except on M5 and M12, namely:—The 3.49 h.p. Standard Sporting Model and the 2.48 h.p. Lightweight Machine.

All O.H.V. models are now fitted with enclosed rocker gear and pushrods, the former being housed in a single aluminium casing, and provision is made for a supply of grease by means of a grease gun nipple. A quick detachable plate held by four set screws allows easy inspection, if necessary, of the rocker box, whilst the whole can be withdrawn by unscrewing the four holding down bolts. Pushrod tubes are telescopic, and are held in position by lock rings top and bottom.

Both the 3.49 h.p. and 4.98 h.p. O.H.V. Models will be available for next season with single or two port exhausts, the latter being at a slight extra cost.

With the exception of the Twin Cylinder Model no change in horsepower of any of the Models has been made. The Twin, however, has been increased from 7.99 h.p. to 9.96 h.p., and either solo or with a sidecar is a most fascinating machine. The engine has tremendous power and acceleration, and its flexibility can only be appreciated from actual experience on the road.

Range of Machines

Apart from the foregoing the machines are on the usual A.J.S. lines, such as all chain transmission, hand controlled clutch, three speed countershaft gear, internal expanding front and rear brakes, quick de-

AMERICA AND BRITISH
MOTOR CYCLES

EXPORT TRADE

Motor-cycle riders overseas are still—and in increasing numbers, showing their desire for British machines as is shown by the rising exports. For the 12 months ended December, 1928, this figure was 48,121 rising to 53,000 for the year ended December, 1927. During the first six months of this year 39,737 were exported, compared with 32,144 for a similar period in 1927.

It is interesting to observe there is an increase in British exports to Canada and the U.S.A., as follows:—

	1927	1928
Canada	30	91
U.S.A.	12	31

Here it might be mentioned that keen enthusiasm for British motor cycle design, in the U.S.A. has been created in recent months. Several of the important U.S. motor cycle events in 1928 were won on British machines.

During last spring Major H. R. Watling, Director of the British Cycle and Motor Cycle Manufacturers' and Traders' Union, Ltd., spent a few weeks in the U.S.A. studying the manufacturing and marketing conditions. He included in his tour visits to the Indian and Harley Davidson factories where matters of mutual interest to British and American motor cycle manufacturers were discussed, and it was generally agreed that in the overseas markets of the world there was much room for co-operation.

The value of British motor cycles as effecting favourable publicity to the motor cycling movement in the U.S.A. is thoroughly appreciated by motor cycle manufacturers who welcome the introduction of British models which, in many respects are so different from those to which the American public has become accustomed.

Enthusiasm amongst motor cyclists and the pride of possession of their respective mounts is one of the ways in which the motor cycling movement has advanced to the considerable extent it has done in Europe and the introduction of British motor cycles with their well known quality and their magnificent performances in racing in recent years will undoubtedly, not only be a direct benefit to British trade, but will indirectly assist the American motor cycling movement and American manufacturers generally.

Major Watling had an opportunity of meeting a number of American motor cyclists who had purchased British machines, and was deeply gratified at the enthusiasm they displayed. Very little criticism of design was made, and this only in a number of small details which can be altered to suit American taste, whilst nothing but the greatest admiration and praise was bestowed on the performances of the machines.

A number of British motor cycles are now in course of firm establishment in this market, including Ariel, B.S.A., A.J.S., Douglas, Velocette, Norton and New Imperial, and arrangements to this end are being made by Messrs. Jones B. Ogleand, Inc., whilst one of the most prominent of American motor cyclists, Mr. Reggie Pink, is handling distribution in New York district.

Already successes have been obtained in the U.S.A. by British machines in competition with American machines, particularly in the Crotona T.T. Races where the following successes were achieved on British machines:—

350 c.c. side valve class (amateur), Dunett 2nd.
350 c.c. o.h.v. class (amateur), A.J.S. 1st, B.S.A., 2nd.
350 c.c. open experts class (amateur and professional), B.S.A. 1st, A.J.S. 2nd.
250 c.c. open expert, Ariel 2nd.

tachable rear wheels, etc. Carburetor silencers are standard on all models; than the twin-cylinder machine. The full list of models are listed for 1929 as follows:—

Model M1—3.49 h.p. De Luxe Twin Cylinder Machine.
Model M2—3.96 h.p. Standard Twin Cylinder Machine.
Model M3—3.49 h.p. De Luxe Side Valve Touring Machine.
Model M4—3.49 h.p. De Luxe Side Valve Sporting Machine.
Model M5—3.49 h.p. Standard Side Valve Sporting Machine.
Model M6—3.49 h.p. Overhead Valve Machine (with single or two port exhaust).
Model M7—3.49 h.p. Overhead Camshaft Machine.
Model M8—4.98 h.p. Overhead Valve Machine (with single or two port exhaust).
Model M9—4.98 h.p. De Luxe Side Valve Touring Machine.
Model M10—4.98 h.p. Overhead Camshaft Machine.
Model M12—2.48 h.p. Lightweight Machine.

COMFORT

Haven't you always wanted a car where the comfort of an arm chair was maintained mile after mile, throughout a day of rapid travel, over roads both good and bad?

In the New Oldsmobile Six there is room to stretch your legs, the seats are moulded to the form of your back. Springs are long and wide and the hydraulic shock absorbers remove even the small jars.

Here you have comfort and riding qualities built right into the car. They will not vary as you flash, care-free, past thousands and thousands of milestones.

"Can Enough Be Built to Meet the Demand?" That's What They All Ask as Soon as They See and Ride in This Remarkable Car

The low-priced car market is undergoing a terrific upheaval. On all sides you hear enthusiastic approval of the new triumph of Chrysler engineering—

The New Plymouth.

The hundreds of thousands who have already inspected the Plymouth details and have experienced its smooth and economical performance, its luxurious comfort, have enthusiastically acclaimed it as setting up an entirely new high measure of low-priced quality and value.

And naturally, they have asked what is only an obvious question after seeing the new Plymouth—"Can enough be built to meet the demand?"

Be sure to see the new Plymouth. Check it over in detail. Don't be content until you ride in it and drive it. Then you too will ask, "Can enough be built to meet the demand?"

CARS LIVE LONGER

Washington.—If your automobile has gone to the scrap heap before it has reached its eighth year, you haven't got the best out of it. The reason is that the average life of the modern motor car is eight and a quarter years, according to figures compiled by the American Road Builders' Association. Less than 2,000,000 cars or about 12 per cent of all registered in the United States, went to the scrap heap last year. At this rate it would take eight and a quarter years to replace all cars on the roads to-day.

AFTER OLYMPIA
STRIKING DEVELOPMENTS
NOTICED
VALUE AND EFFICIENCY

The curtain has been rung down again on the annual Motor Exhibition at Olympia. Being, as is well known, international in character, Olympia provides the most unique opportunity for interested visitors to compare the products of British car manufacturers with those of the manufacturers in the other important car-producing countries of the world.

Indirectly, also, the London Motor Show provides such manufacturers—foreign as well as British—with a tremendously valuable medium for extensively advertising their enterprise and accomplishments, for in addition to the magnetic attraction of Olympia the reports as to what is to be found exhibited are carried throughout the world.

Foreign Cars Compared
 By its means the public are able to compare car with car, and improvement with improvement. The latest productions of British manufacturers are displayed side by side with those of their foreign competitors. In addition, too, the potential user is able to consider his own particular transport difficulty in the light of the types and models displayed; and is able to formulate an idea as to which particular make is most calculated to give him the satisfaction he desires.

The Exhibition, in addition, has afforded a striking example of the modern trend of automobile construction and a valuable object lesson of the degree of efficiency and perfection reached by designers and constructors. Possibly on no former occasion has so much interest been centred on British made cars, and the result has been that a keener insight has been obtained of the great advance made by Home manufacturers in their efforts to place British motor vehicles in the forefront of the world's motor markets. There has been, particularly of late, growing appreciation of the difficulties which the British industry has had to face in its fight for a share of those markets and the progress made and the ability of British manufacturers to offer an equally attractive range of vehicles as their competitors has been clearly instanced at the recent Motor Show.

Design and Appearance
 A tour of the 'Stands left one with the clear conviction that in regard to design, appearance, efficiency and range of models the British car manufacturer is leaving no stone unturned in his determination to meet satisfactorily the efforts of his rivals, and if in no other respect, Olympia has, in 1928, given abundant proof of the appreciation of Home manufacturers of the requirements of Overseas markets and has shown the result of their efforts to give practical effect thereto.

As a result, striking developments have been noticeable in the range of British medium-powered cars. The six and eight-cylinder cars exhibited should provide a ready answer to the needs of Overseas buyers in this respect, while on the important question of price the portents are that the time is assuredly not far distant, if indeed it has not already arrived, when the ability of the British manufacturer to offer equal, if not surpassing, value in the matter of general efficiency, and appearance, will be further strengthened by the elimination of any drawback he may in the past have suffered in the ability of his competitors to undersell him.

Light Cars Improved
 The field of the small utility car of from 7 to 10 h.p. is one of British inception, and the developments which have taken place in this branch clearly uphold the claim made on its behalf as capable of providing efficient means of transportation at a minimum cost of operation.

Many innovations for making motoring still further free from trouble are heard of from time to time, but the correctness of the claims put forward in their support is not always fully established. The Motor Exhibition, however, provides the ready means of safeguarding purchasers from unsound innovations, while indicating how manufacturers are continuously seeking to eliminate any causes of dissatisfaction that may have existed in the past in connection with the vehicles for which they are responsible.

VICTORY SIX
CROSSES U.S. IN 76
HOURS
BEATS THE TRAINS

It took Hard M. Fenwick, of Philadelphia, just 76 hours and 13 minutes to drive his own Victory Six Sedan from Los Angeles to New York, beating the time of the fastest trains by more than seven hours and cutting by considerable margin the best professional time for the run.

Mr. Fenwick's performance definitely puts the idea of racing across the country in specially equipped cars with the help of police escorts and other facilities in the museum of things vast. For Mr. Fenwick's Victory, with 12,487 miles on its speedometer when it began the run, was declared ready to go as it stood, and took the long road to New York without any advance efforts having been made to smooth the way.

Remarkable Record
 The record appears more remarkable in view of the fact that coming through Arizona the Victory lost three hours when it was forced from the road in a collision with another car, and that it continued the run without replacement of parts after sustaining damages which would have crippled a less sturdy car.

That the double-box, all-steel construction of the Victory body saved their lives in the Arizona collision, Mr. Fenwick and his companion, G. W. Brink, are agreed. The body was craved in, but neither of the men was hurt. Other damages sustained included a broken windshield, a bent front axle and steering gear, a demolished wheel, and jammed front brakes. Pulled onto the highway by a passing car, the Victory went on to Kingman, Arizona, under its own power. Here repairs were made with a sledge hammer serving as the principal tool.

Another considerable delay was encountered near Salina, Kansas, where it was necessary to make a ninety-mile detour to avoid flooded roads. At Winslow, Arizona, the Victory ran into a virtual cloud-burst, but the intrepid drivers disconnected the fan belt to prevent water being thrown over the engine and pushed on. After fifteen miles of very wet driving they were again able to open up and make time. Six times the Victory was halted for tyre-changes and repairs.

Mastery Car
 Throughout the run the Victory performed with the power, speed, and stamina which have established its reputation as a masterly high way car. Mountains, deserts, mud, rain, and city traffic proved all alike to the Victory. In no case could a delay be traced to any shortcoming on the part of the car. The other respect, Olympia has, in 1928, was remarkable. At an average speed for the entire run of 43 miles an hour, it delivered an average of sixteen miles to the gallon.

Messrs. Fenwick and Brink were checked out of Los Angeles by Western Union time and the same method of verifying their performance was used when they arrived in New York. Confirmation of their feat at both ends of the run is in affidavit form.

"We put our faith in the car and gave her the gun," declared Mr. Fenwick, speaking of their journey eastward from Kingman, where emergency repairs had been made after the collision. The outcome of trip seems to prove that their faith in the Victory was entirely justified.

by means of a small lever placed on the steering wheel, the actual change being effected at will by means of depressing a small pedal which takes the place of the ordinary clutch pedal.

Enterprise Illustrated
 Improvements in such matters as the question of springing, ignition, and acceleration were apparent, and it is not too much to say that British manufacturers were able to surprise the public with the value and efficiency of their goods, the Show representing a fitting illustration of British enterprise and achievement. Much has been written of the improvements taking place in British cars, but the practical representation was such as to place for ever at rest any doubts that might still have existed as to the ability of British manufacturers to cater for the requirements not only of their national market, but of the wider market Overseas, and to cater thereto in the most eminently satisfactory manner.

It may be interesting to refer to the fact that at the forthcoming Motor Show in New York British Manufacturers will, for the first time, be represented, and it is safe to assume that the public who visit that Show will undoubtedly be attracted by the quality and sterling worth of the vehicles manufactured by the most serious competitors of their own national manufacturers. The British Motor Industry has again given conclusive proof that it still possesses that initiative and foresight which has in the past and another the introduction by a British firm of a device whereby the gear may be selected in advance.

Because it's new . . . Because it's individual . . . Because it's the most beautiful automobile of the day, this new Buick . . . the car of cars is enjoying the year of years . . .

THE NEW BUICK

Not Chrysler
 but the Chrysler Public

BROADLY speaking, the measure of any man's success is the size of the public behind him.

He grows as his public grows—as his acts are approved in increasing volume by an increasing public.

These few words tell almost all there is to the Chrysler story—or give, at any rate, the root-reason why Chrysler looms large on the motor car horizon.

Chrysler has never halted or hesitated, because Chrysler is free and has no obligations to anyone but its own public—no limit except the limit of its own creative powers, its own energy and enthusiasm, its own faith in the boundless resources of the nation.

Chrysler quite frankly confesses its intention to try to surpass other cars and other manufacturers—quite frankly admits an enthusiastic ambition for continued leadership in value giving—quite frankly intends to leave nothing undone to earn and deserve and hold the greatest motor car public in all the world.

This, it seems to the Chrysler management, is the urgent need of every manufacturing institution which aspires to satisfy a swift-moving public—to realise that it does move, that yesterday is dead, that laurels wither, that today is gloriously alive, that tomorrow calls clamorously for greater and greater endeavor.

REPLY TO GERMAN NOTE

NOW PREPARED

THE BRITISH REPLY TO THE FRENCH GOVERNMENT.

IN AGREEMENT

London, Yesterday.
After an exchange of views between the interested Governments, a draft reply to the German note of October 30, on the subject of the setting up of a committee to study reparations, has been prepared.
The British Government have informed the French Government that they agree with the terms of this reply on the assumption that it is approved by the other Governments which at Geneva decided to set up a committee.—British Wireless Service.

PRESIDENT-ELECT

THE PLOT AGAINST MR. HOOVER

"TO BOMB HIS TRAIN"

Buenos Aires, Yesterday.
The authorities have unearthed what is believed to be a plot against the life of Mr. H. Hoover, the President-Elect of the United States. The police, who for the past few days have been rounding up persons believed to be hostile to the United States, raided a house in which were discovered a number of bombs and pistols, a quantity of ammunition and also a map of the railway system. Two men were arrested.
The police believe that the plotters intended to place bombs on the railway line before the arrival of Mr. Hoover on Thursday.—Reuter's American Service.

WORKERS V. POLICE

A CLASH IN NORTH BOMBAY

Bombay, Yesterday.
At least three are dead as the result of a collision between mill strikers and police in North Bombay. The police fired in self-defence after being stoned.—Reuter.
Further Details Later
It is officially stated that 2 were killed and 27 injured, including two constables, seriously. The riot was a sequel to a faction fight between two labour camps in which some of the labour leaders came off badly.
This has been followed by a lightning strike at a number of mills.
The police flourished sticks in an effort to disperse the crowd before using their revolvers.—Reuter.

YEN IN NANKING

Nanking, Yesterday.
China's capital is besieged in honour of General Yen Hsi-shan, who arrived at 9 a.m. from Tongku.
Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, General Feng Yu-shiang and other prominent persons called on Yen Hsi-shan at the latter's headquarters before noon.
Yen Hsi-shan's headquarters are guarded by soldiers with rifles and machine-guns. It is expected that he will stay here some time.—Reuter.

SINKIANG REVOLT

Peking, Yesterday.
According to reports from Sinkiang, many troops there are rising against Chin Shou-jen, the chairman of the Provincial Government. The Military Commissioner, III, is leading his troops to Tihua.
The capital is panic-stricken as altogether three military commissioners and four troops are revolting against Chin Shou-jen.—Reuter.

SIR ARCHIBALD SALVIDGE

London, Yesterday.
Sir Archibald Salvidge, an outstanding figure in the public life of Liverpool for nearly forty years and leader of the city council, died last evening. He was a prominent organiser of conservatism in the North of England.—British Wireless Service.

Sir Leslie Wilson, Governor of Bombay, and Lady Wilson left for England on Dec. 8. Sir Frederick Sykes, Governor-designate, and Lady Sykes were expected to arrive on Dec. 7.

THE QUEEN UNVEILS A WAR MEMORIAL

VOICE BROADCAST

COMMEMORATING DEEDS OF BRAVE MEN

TOWER HILL CEREMONY

London, Yesterday.
Despite her anxiety the Queen this afternoon fulfilled her engagement to unveil the memorial which has been erected on Tower Hill to the men of the mercantile marine and fishing fleets, who lost their lives during the war and whose only grave is the sea.
On her way to the memorial and at the ceremony itself Her Majesty was the object of popular sympathy shown by deeply impressive silence instead of the ovation which would normally have been given her.
A short service was conducted by the Archbishop of Canterbury and the Queen performed the actual unveiling, saying: "To the glory of God and in honour of these brave men I unveil this memorial on behalf of those for whom they died."
The signal "We will not forget" was hoisted at the flagstaff.
The ceremony was broadcast and the Queen's voice was heard on the wireless for the first time in the history of broadcasting.—British Wireless Service.

FORGERY CHARGE

there were people trying to utter these notes. This was in the middle of November. Accordingly Chinese detective No. 680 was instructed to get into touch with No. 1 with a view to buying some of the notes, which he represented he intended to get rid of up the coast.
In the discussion which No. 1 had with the detective, he represented that he could procure the "very modest sum of $250,000 in forged notes."
Mr. Lindsell remarked that, in other words, the man was going to replace the Treasury losses.
Mr. Fitzroy agreed, but said that there was some doubt as to whether his intentions were entirely patriotic, because he asked for the "small sum" for $25 for each forged $50.

Bargain Money

Conversation was first opened with No. 1 on November 14 when he asked for some bargain money. On the 15th, the detective paid No. 1 $30 as bargain money for the purchase of $30,000 worth of forged notes. No. 7 watched the handing over of the money in the street and then came up, whereupon No. 1 passed the $30 over to him.

The detective was then taken to the third floor of No. 114 Des Voeux-road Central and introduced to Chan Wing. The detective tried to induce Chan Wing to carry on negotiations in a certain shop, but Chan Wing objected. During the discussion with Chan Wing, Nos. 2, 10, 11 and 12 were present, as also was No. 6 who claimed to be Chan Wing's wife.

Knew They Were Watched
Eventually the detective arranged to buy $40,000 worth of forged notes, and on the 16th, accompanied by another Chinese detective he again visited Chan Wing and produced $2,000.

Before the deal could be put through Chan Wing got information that the place was being watched by the police and the meeting was promptly broken up.
Chan Wing was then shadowed to No. 19, Queen's-road East and the police decided to raid that place when the printing press and other things were found.

Besides the note found on No. 8 and the one produced by No. 1 in the negotiations with the detective, no other forged note came to light until forty were found under the pile of wood at Jardine's bazaar.

Talked a Great Deal
Then the police went to No. 114 Des Voeux-road Central on the 17th where No. 8 and the discharged No. 9 were arrested. No. 8 discarded a forged $50 note when the police arrived.

Later a room in Lammer-lane where Chan Wing lived was visited. The police arrived just after Chan Wing had flown, but No. 6 (his wife) was arrested. Nos. 6 and 7 then had a conversation and they decided to lead the police to Jardine's

A BIG AERONAUTIC CONFERENCE

AT WASHINGTON

BEING ATTENDED BY 500 DELEGATES

OPENED BY PRESIDENT

Washington, Yesterday.
President Coolidge, in opening the International Civil Aeronautic Conference, which was attended by 500 delegates, including 100 from foreign countries, said that two years ago the entire value of the aeronautic industry of the United States was only a million sterling, but that it is now $35,000,000.—Reuter's American Service.

THE "CELTIC"

CARGO BEING DISCHARGED

London, Yesterday.
The cargo of the liner "Celtic" is being discharged. The vessel is in a bad position, but the weather hitherto has been good.—Reuter.

LAD CHARGED

ALLEGED STATEMENT IN OPIUM CASE

A date was fixed for hearing at the Kowloon Court to-day, in a case in which a Chinese and a little Chinese boy are both charged with unlawful possession of seventy-two tael of raw opium. Revenue Officer Tallon, who is prosecuting, said that the lad was stopped yesterday, at the Kowloon ferry wharf by a Chinese detective, and the boy had at once pointed to first defendant, who was standing nearby, and said "That is the man who gave me the opium." Both were arrested.
Mr. E. J. L. Grist, appearing for the first defendant asked for a date to be fixed. Monday morning was selected.
Bail was allowed at $1,500.

TSETSE FLY

A NEW RESEARCH STATION IN TRANSVAAL

London, Yesterday.
An announcement is made to the Empire Marketing Board as to a Union Government Veterinary Research Station at Onderstepoort, Transvaal, to serve as a link in the chain of Imperial Research Stations. The Board has approved of a substantial grant for the purpose, and says that it is expected that the new station will lead directly to intensified investigation of such problems as the tsetse fly control.—Reuter.

SENATOR KLOTZ

RESIGNS HIS SENATORSHIP TO RELIEVE AUTHORITIES

Paris, Yesterday.
Klotz has resigned his senatorship, relieving the authorities of the necessity for raising the question as to his Parliamentary immunity in view of his prosecution. The question as to his mental responsibility has still to be decided. He entered a sanatorium on the advice of two mental specialists. Klotz, apart from his political activities, was a passionate gambler.—Reuter.

DIDN'T LOOK IT

Remarking that the lad in front of him did not look like a criminal, Mr. E. W. Hamilton, the Kowloon Magistrate, ordered that a Chinese who was charged with the theft of two brass water taps from President Apartments, receive twelve strokes of the cane.
Detective Inspector A. Fallon said that defendant was arrested yesterday on the premises of President Apartments, which is a block of buildings taken over by the Military authorities. They were all empty, and defendant had in his possession a key that opened most of the flats.

bazaar where the 40 forged notes were found. They talked a great deal and gave away No. 18, who was arrested in a house in Shanghai-street, Yau-motai.
Evidence was then called. The case is proceeding.
